MURRAY KAUFMAN, 94, WANTS PEOPLE TO BECOME ADVOCATES FOR THE ENVIRONMENT. A NEW YORK TIMES OP-ED OUTLINING THE POTENTIAL CONSEQUENCES OF CANADIAN TAR SAND EXPLOITATION SPURRED KAUFMAN TO ENERGIZE HIS FELLOW ROSE SCHNITZER MANOR RESIDENTS TO STAND UP FOR CONSERVATION.

“There are always important issues to support,” said Kaufman, who writes at least one letter every month to the president, a congressional representative or secretary of the interior. Most recently, he told them that “as a member of The Wilderness Society, I stand with its efforts to protect America’s Arctic and all of our nation’s wild places from harmful oil and gas development.”
A LIFETIME OF ACTIVISM

Kaufman has been an ardent activist for good causes since 1957. A teacher at Roslyn High School on Long Island, he discovered a factory was exploiting a legal loophole to pollute a nearby lake.

“Long after graduation kids would stop me on the street, telling me they went into environment-related careers because of my classes.”

— Murray Kaufman

For the next class project he had students write alternative regulations. A local assemblyman was so impressed with the students’ drafts he introduced a bill in the state legislature.

“It took another three or four years to get the law passed,” Kaufman said. But watching legislators discuss their work felt very empowering to the kids in the gallery.

He said, “Long after graduation kids would stop me on the street, telling me they went into environment-related careers because of my classes.”

Darfur
by Murray Kaufman

The outstretched hand, the thin trembling fingers –
O so minuscule! If you touch them, they might break –
Or kiss them, and they burn with desire –

O Darfur! The world is numb and your pain finds death, and those tiny baby fingers caress your lips one last time – and desire flees...

NO REST IN RETIREMENT
Kaufman retired from teaching in 1982. In 1996 he and his wife moved to the San Francisco Bay Area, where he volunteered to submit water samples from area lakes to laboratories. He would then report any pollution to the authorities.

In his retirement, Kaufman also has worked as a political activist. After his wife’s passing in 1999, he answered the call of California Democratic Party officials to help candidates in Oregon’s close presidential election. In 2000 he moved to Salem.

Kaufman is gearing up to join the re-election campaign. He said, “I’m a good campaigner. I’ll support him but I’m not afraid to criticize the president. Right now he needs a push.”

Soon after moving to Rose Schnitzer Manor at Cedar Sinai Park in 2006, Kaufman helped form the Social Action Club, which, until its demise in early 2012, fund-raised for good causes.
He has now joined 20 other residents in contributing monthly to the Itafari Foundation to help Rwandan children attend school.

NATURE IN POETRY AND JUDAISM Nature wends its way into Kaufman’s poetry. In “If I Were Young Again,” for example, he writes, “…for here was one human being who/proudly bonds with nature’s throwaways.”

Judaism underpins Kaufman’s activism. He said, “If I am only for myself, what am I?” That’s the Jewish principle. We’re here to help everyone, not just us.”

Peter Korchnak is the online communications manager for Cedar Sinai Park. He writes about the experience of immigration from Central Europe at
